ROCHE WINS GOLF

Charlie Roche, a former hockey player at Loyola, won the Donald Hingston Trophy for low gross at the Annual Alumni Golf Tournament.

Charlie, a member of Summerlea, shot a four over par 76 on the Royal Montreal Red Course. It was a great effort. Roche, certainly one of the top golfers in recent Alumni Tournaments, held low net honors in 1969.

He took the title easily over some talented performers such as Father John Hilton, Dr. Whitey Schutz, Dr. Jack McMullan, Gerry Cherry, George Lengvari, Larry Langhill, Leo Carroll, Chris Gribbin, Terry 'O'Connor, Bob Marchessault, Norm Smith, Brian Patterson, Jim Smith and Ross Hutchings.

Other tournament winners were: Gerry Cherry, who had low net honours, and accepting the Carling Trophy; Gerry Sullivan, the Father Tom "Pop" Moylan Seniors Award; Marv Moss, of the Gazette, the Lengvari Trophy for members of press, radio, and television; and for the second consecutive year George Hemlock acquired the Schenley Trophy for guests.

Played under ideal weather conditions an enthusiastic group of one hundred and forty participated in the Shot-gun affair.

After golf the boys relaxed in the nineteenth hole and then partook of a delicious roast beef dinner. After dinner the various prizes and trophies were presented.

Mr. Gerry Patterson was the guest speaker.

DR. J. C. BURKE NEW LOYOLA AVP

Dr. Joseph C. Burke, Appointed Academic Vice-President at Loyola in July of this year, was the unanimous selection of the search committee for Academic Vice-President and this selection was unanimously agreed upon by a special committee set up by the Board of Trustees.

A professor of history for the past eight years at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Dr. Burke, 38, graduated from Bellarmine College with a Bachelor's degree in Arts and later obtained both his Masters (1958) and Doctoral (1964) degrees from Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana.

The new Academic Vice-President assumed his post at Loyola at the beginning of September 1970.

ALUMNUS NAMED DEAN OF ARTS

REV. RUSSELL BREEN

Rev. Dr. Russell Breen has been appointed Dean of Arts at Loyola College, it was announced today by Rev. Gerald MacGuigan, S.J., Chairman of the College's Board of Trustees.

This was the first senior administrative appointment at Loyola following the setting up of a special Search Committee composed of four students, four professors and four administrators elected by their respective groups. Father Breen, 45, a Loyola alumnus, joined the College's teaching staff in 1968 following doctoral studies at the Université de Strasbourg, France, where he received his degree in Religious Sciences. Previously he obtained graduate degrees at Fordham University in New York and at Université de Montréal.

A native of Montreal and a priest of the archdiocese, Father Breen was Chaplain of the Newman Centre at McGill University from 1951 until 1965 and is former national Chaplain of the Canadian Federation of Newman Clubs. He has been Acting Dean of Arts at Loyola since January of this year. Besides his teaching duties at Loyola and his ecumenical work in Canada, Father Breen is a member of the Executive Committee of the Conseil Presbytéral de l'Archdiocèse de Montréal.

ALUMNI DIRECTORS REQUEST SEAT WITH TRUSTEES

In a letter dated August 31, 1970, followed by a formal submission on September 16, 1970, the President of the Board of Directors, Bob Beauregard, has officially requested that the Alumni body as an integral part of the Loyola Community be represented on the Loyola Board of Trustees.

"We firmly believe", stated the brief, "in the concept of a Loyola community comprising students, faculty, members of the administration, trustees, and alumni. The tie that binds our membership to Loyola exists by definition of the word Alumnus . . . the size of our membership adds to the argument that the Association's application warrants serious consideration.

"Alumni are keenly aware of and interested in the development of Loyola and the role this institution can play in education. With knowledge of Loyola's past, a tie with the present and a vital concern for the future, alumni are prepared to become intimately involved in the campus' commitment to higher education.

"Our request is not without precedent. Canadian and American institutions of higher learning have recognized and continue to recognize in increasing numbers the role alumni can play in the growth of the university community. The presence of alumni on important campus bodies is becoming an accepted part of reality. We encourage that this principle be adopted at Loyola."

The brief requested the presence of one voting member on the Board of Trustees iterating at the same time that the Board of Trustees should be kept limited in its numbers to ensure a high degree of efficiency within that body.

Although members of the alumni body now sit on the Board of Trustees they do so as civilians and not as representatives of the Alumni as a whole. The brief also stated that if the traditional interest and support of the Alumni body were removed that Loyola of Montreal's commitment to education would be seriously prejudiced.

MORE NOTES FROM NEW ORLEANS

—About nine-hundred attended the Development and Alumni Conference and the betting is that everyone of them spent some time in the French Quarter. It's a spot for the young at heart, the adventurous in spirit, the bon vivant, and the connoisseurs of good wines and fine food. It is also the place for art lovers who can browse for hours through the shops and galleries of Bourbon Street, Royal, North Rampart, Burgundy and Dauphine with the odd detour onto Toulouse, St. Ann, Dumaone, St. Peter and Ursuline. New Orleans is undoubtedly the Jazz Centre of the World. Pete Fountain is there, so is Al Hirt and many, many more including the real old-timers at Preservation Hall. Incidentally both Pete Fountain and Al Hirt despite what you may have heard, appear regularly at their bistros and perform for forty-five minutes to an hour in each show.

—New Orleans may be third to Montreal and San Francisco in providing good eating establishments. Brennan's has to be one of the best breakfast houses on the continent. If you're ever there try the rum and banana special for breakfast. The Carribbean Room in the Pontchartrain Hotel is well worth a visit. Other good rooms are the Commander, Rib Room, Normandie and if you are a steak man the place is Moran's.

—After the big meal, gourmets head for Cabaret Toulouse, Your Father's Mustache, the Chateau Flamenco, the Famous Door and others.

—And of course there is always the Champagne Girl—Rita Alexander.

—And that is it for New Orleans. Next year St. Louis.

Incidentally Ann, Betty, Eleanor, Kathy and Maureen will also be there on the 16th.

Now how about you?

PELTON— ALUMNI OBSERVER

Mr. William Pelton has been named by the Alumni Association as its observer on the Future of Loyola Committee. The Committee, a joint Trustees-Senate undertaking, is chaired by Dr. Robert Marchessault.

Bill, who is now with Continental Chemicals Limited, had a distinguished scholastic career, especially in the field of Chemistry. However he was much more than an excellent classroom and laboratory student. He was a pundit before a typewriter, a star in athletics, a willing worker on college projects, and president of the student body.

The class of 1948 voted Bill the most active student of the lot. He participated in Football, Hockey, Track, Loyola News, Debating, and Dramatics.

After graduation, Pelton taught at the College and eventually moved into industry.

His appointment, by the Board of Directors of the Association, assures that the Alumni point of view will be presented in a forceful and lucid manner at meetings of the Future of Loyola Committee.

ALUMNI IN SPORTS—

Loyola grads were well represented this year at pro hockey camps that are just coming to a close. No less than four members of last year's powerhouse that went 28-5-2 over the season got invitations to exhibit their wares, with one of them being a first draft selection.

Mike Lowe is probably the best known of the group, being picked first by St. Louis in the 1969 amateur draft. Mike is presently having a good training camp after spending the better part of the summer touring Europe. The Lachute native is expected to play at least the first half of the season for the Blues' Kansas City farm team. Mike scored a hat trick to lead Kansas City to a 4-0 win over Amarillo last week in an exhibition encounter.

Playing for Amarillo, a Pittsburgh affiliate, was Ron Riley, a rookie last year with the Warriors who attended the Penguins camp in Brantford this year. Ron, who hails from Two Mountains, Quebec, was a recipient along with captain Chris Hayes of a Hockey Canada scholarship and will be returning to Loyola for another year.

Bill Doyle, class of '70, the Richmond, Quebec native was a big surprise at Oakland Seals' camp and it now appears he will start the season with Providence Reds of the AHL. Bill scored nine points during the training period at Oshawa, and played for Oakland in a game against Pittsburgh at Peterborough. During his sojourn in Peterborough he was visited by Art Thomas, who now toils out of Toronto for a dental supply company. Artie expects to play for Orillia Terriers of the Senior OHA this year.

Steve Sanderson '70 was out with the Montreal Canadiens for a while this year, ditto John Donnelly '70 with the Los Angeles Kings. Donnelly has since left to go and play for a year in Austria, along with Alain Tremblay, who turned down a tryout with Pittsburgh in favor of Europe. They will play for a team in Austria's top league.

Dave Draper recently announced the appointment of Pete Morin Jr. as coach of the Warriors' development team, the junior varsity Braves. Pete played four years of Junior "A" hockey with Lachine Maroons and two years for the Warriors.

A member of the class of '69, Pete is now married with one daughter, Cynthia. Pete got his Associate Insurance Broker's degree from McGill the same year he graduated from Loyola and now works for his father's firm, P. Morin Agency, Insurance Brokers.

Ricky Dawson, class of '68, perhaps the best play-off hockey player Loyola ever had, now resides in Brockville, Ontario, where he doubles as hockey scout covering the Brockville area for the Warriors. Ricky, although retired from hockey the past two years, is still on Salt Lake City's protected list. He was recently visited by Bruce Kelly, class of '67, and at last report both were recovering quite well, according to their wives.

Brian Marcil, the footballer who graduated last year, was involved in the Bob McCarthy deal and is now playing for Calgary Stampeders in the Western section of the CFL. He is currently on the kickoff team and big things are expected of him.

The Hockey Warriors open camp on October 5th, and it looks like another strong squad, with 11 returnees and a good rookie crop. Loyola will be one of the participants in Hockey Canada's first annual tournament, to be held in Toronto December 26 and 27. Perhaps the Toronto chapter might work something around this event.

We need hockey scouts! If any of the hockey grads feel that they could help us in looking at the local talent in their community and dropping us a line, it would be much appreciated. To date we have got help from Bruce Kelly, Bernie Austin, and Ricky Dawson. Send any info you have to Terry Pye at the college. Thanks!

Bob Beauregard, President of the Alumni Board of Directors for this year has been recently appointed Vice-President of J. Walter Thompson with whom he has been since 1964. Bob is also CAAP course director this year for the Institute of Canadian Advertising.

Bernie G. Croce has been appointed Manager, Employment for IBM Canada with whom he has been since his graduation from Loyola in 1963.
